BUT MR. CHOATE'S HAGUE VIC-TORY IS REALLY A DEFEAT.

vo Chance of the Conference Embodying Exemption of Private Property at Sea in Any Convention Pramed-Navai Powers Not Ready -Morally Important. pectal Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

THE HAGUE, July 17 .- Mr. Choate's pronosal regarding private property at sea n time of war was brought to a vote in the fourth commission of the peace conference to-day, and although it was nominally carried it was virtually defeated. Mr. Choate demanded a precise vote without further speeches, but some of the delegates wished to make explanations and they had to be heard.

Sefor Urruti', for Spain, announced the acceptance of the abolition of privateering. Sir Ernest Satow reiterated Great Britain's view that the questions of blockade and contraband must be settled first or otherwise nothing could be done toward abolishing prizes. They were willing, he said, to listen to the eighth commandmest, but could not forget the tenth. He opposed the Belgian compromise sub stituting seizure and sequestration for confiscation.

M. Bourgeois rested on the French view He suggested a preliminary examination of he Belgian proposal, but Mr. Choate again insisted upon a direct vote. President Martens, summing up the position, pointed out that the authorities and history said, among other things, that the abolition of privateering might conceivably enable merchants to benefit from a war in which their country was involved, whereby land ommunication might be broken.

Mr. Choate's proposal was then submitted textually as follows:

The private property of the citizens or subjects of the signatory Powers, with the exception of contraband of war, shall be exempt from capture or seizure at sea by the armed vessels or military forces of said signatory Powers, but nothing herein contained shall extend exemption from eizure to vessels and their cargoes which may attempt to enter a port blockaded by the naval forces of any of the said Powers." The vote stood 21, for the proposal to 11 against it. Chile's representative was present, but abstained from voting. There were eleven absentees, including Argentina. Paraguay, Nicaragua, Guatemala and

America's supporters were Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, Denmark, Holand, Belgium, Sweden, Norway, Turkey, Luxemburg, China, Persia, Siam, Brazil, Uraguay, Ecuador, Cuba, Hayti and San Domingo. Germany's vote was qualified by a reservation regarding blockade and contraband, which it held must be settied

Those who voted against the proposal were Great Britain, France, Russia, Spain Portugal, Mexico, Colombia, Panama, San Salvador, Japan and Montenegro.

Although the victory is barren, inasmuch as the proposal did not secure the support of even half the members of the conference, for its adoption, Mr. Choate and his colleagues are pleased with the result as an important expression of opinion. It is foreseen, however, that it can be nothing more than an expression of opinion, as there is no probability that the com-mission will recommend the conference to embody it in any convention or final act in view of the opposition of the great naval

Moreover, it is practically certain that many of the Powers which supported the principle embodied in the resolution would not sign a protocol making it effective. It is calculated that America's supporters epresent populations reaching a total f 824,000,000, including 310,000,000 Chinese, while the opposition represent 729,000,000 including 304,000,000 Indians. It is pointed out, however, in behalf of the opposition that it is a case rather for weighing than

Sir Edward Fry communicated to M. Netidoff, president of the conference, the British proposal for the limitation of armaments. It is substantially a repetition of that presented by M. Bourgeois in 1899 and then approved unanimously, but is, more urgent in tone, being worded almost imperatively. It will be submitted at some denary session of the conference, but the date has not been fixed. M. Nelidoff informed the delegates of the erms of the proposal so as to enable them consult with their Governments and discuss it among themselves. There is no greater probability now than heretofore f the achievement of anything practical from the proposal. After the vote on the American proposal here was an important discussion of its onsequences regarding the Belgian, Dutch Brazilian proposais affecting the right f capture and the question of indemnifica-

MM Martens and Bourgeois were of the amon that with a view to a compromise to committee might proceed to a discuson of these matters, but Mr. Choate pointed that in view of the large and unexpected rivy for the American fadical proposal a would not be justified in accepting more ess colorless modifications. Ernest Satow intimated that Great atain could not discuss proposals which ere essentially modifications of a principle had totally rejected. The British actions did not admit of a compromise garding capture. The subsidiary proreals stand over until the next meeting.

SLID DOWN BALLOON GUY ROPE. THE APPORTIONMENT BILL IN Then Dropped Some-The Balloon, Afre, Adventures on Its Own Hook.

"Professor" M. Padnaut, aeronaut, having filled his 70 foot canvas balloon with hot air, mounted his trapeze in Sulzer's Harlem River Park yesterday afternoon jumped away on what was advertised as a daredevil, diabolical death defying feat, an ascension and parachute drop-all for the diversion of the Richard Weber Em ployees' Association, which was picnicking in the park.

When the balloon got to a height of 500 feet or so the professor saw that it was on fire. He started tinkering with the parachute and found that it wouldn't work. So he uncoiled 200 feet of guy rope and slid down to the end of that, but the rope was twenty feet short and when Padnaut took a chance and dropped anyway he came down on to the roof of the engine house in the middle of the Willis avenue drawbridge over the Harlem river. A policeman climbed up and carried him down uncon scious. He recovered and went home.

The balloon, spouting smoke, but no flames that any one could see, bowled along northeast until it encountered a whiff of wind at St. Anne's avenue and turned down East 134th street. On the front stoop of 613 sat Mrs. M. Glosser holding her threeyear-old boy. Trying to dodge the monster, which was now flying low, she ran with the child into the street. The underworks of the balloon knocked her over. The baby fell from her arms and had to be doctored before it regained conscious

The balloon arrived at 619 Willis av enue. Enter Thomas P. Moore of 867 East 134th street, who had seen what befell Mrs. Glosser and had been discreetly chasing it from behind. He stepped on the trailing guy rope, fell on his face, rose again and grabbe the rope. The still buoyant vessel jounce onflicted on the principle in question, and | him up and down, but Moore kept hauling the slack, hand over hand, and finally su ceeded in gettting a half hitch around a tree

The crowd gathered. Moore cleared a circle and was starting in on a modest explanation of his feat when Policeman Joe Gobel came along and took a look at

"You're drunk!" said Gobel, and that was the charge in the lieutenant's book when Moore and the balloon were bundled into the same wagon and taken to the station

WILL DISINTER MRS. MAGILL. State's Attorney Quashes Coroner's Jury Verdict and Orders New Inquest.

CLINTON, Ill., July 17 .- Assistant States Attorney Mitchell, in charge of the case against Fred Magill, under arrest at San Diego, Cal., charged with the murder of his first wife, to-day decided to quash the verdict of the Coroner's jury, which re-turned a verdict that Mrs. Magill committed suicide, and to-morrow the body will be exhumed and a new jury impanelled to investigate the case.

Simultaneously with this decision Mr. Mitchell announced for the first time that the State has in its possession the letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Magill before her death and it is said that at least one of these has been discovered to be a

THE LID OFF THE GOVERNMENT. Meyer the Last Member of the Cabinet to Leave Washington for His Vacation. WASHINGTON, July 17.-The lid is of the Government in Washington. It was carried away on the Congressional Limited at 4 o'clock this afternoon and won't be on again for three weeks or so. This particular lid is Postmaster-General Meyer, the last of the members of President Roose velt's Cabinet to leave Washington. Mr. Meyer will join his family at Hamilton. Mass., to-morrow and will leave Boston ators cannot see what point can be gained on Friday for Matepedia, Quebec, where by the Assembly refusing to accept the he expects to spend about a fortnight in salmon fishing. Just who is the principal representative of the Government in Washington now is hard to say, with the President and all the members of the Cabinet away. The honor belongs probably to Robert Bacon, acting Secretary of State, who, in addition to being the representative of the senior Cabinet officer, was a classmate and is one of the closest friends of President Roosevelt.

Post office officials say that Postmaster General Meyer is a glutton for work. They think he has earned his vacation and hope he won't worry about getting back here soon. He works just as hard in hot weather as in cold, and the way he has made things hum in the last day or two in preparation for his departure has put the busiest little busy bee in the drone class.

PINED TO RETURN TO WARSAW

oman of 96, Only Eight Months Here, Steals Away to Go to Her Old Home. Mrs. Clara Fogel, 96 years old, came to America eight months ago and went to live with her married son, Philip, and his wife at 139 Osborn street, in the Brownsville part of Brooklyn, but was not satisfied. For her there was no place like old Warsaw, in Poland, where she came from. On Tuesday morning she thought an opportunity for starting for her old home had arrived, and she stole quietly out of the

Mrs. Fogel is strong despite her years and she toddled slowly away. Nobody interfered with her. Over toward the northwest she thought Warsaw lay, and it was comfortable to know she was bound back to the home of her childhood. She was born there, reared her family there and buried her husband there. She got hungry, but did not beg. She had no money. Early yesterday morning, after the journey had been on fourteen hours and while her relatives were searching everywhere, a policeman noticed the lonely old figure and brought her into the Herbert street station, Williamsburg, eight miles from her home in Brownsville. She was fed and then pleaded that she be allowed to go on. Her son was sent for and took her

SENATOR HINMAN INTRODUCES THE TULLY PLAN.

The Joint Committee Fails to Come to an Agreement-Senate Will Amend the Tully Plan by Substituting Three Distriets Suggested by the Assembly.

ALBANY, July 17 .- Indications to-night are that if the Assembly does not approve of the Tully apportionment plan, as it is to be revised at a caucus of the Republican Senators Monday night, the extra session will adjourn without taking affirmative action on that question. The special committees appointed by each house of the Legislature to frame an apportionment bill after repeated conferences determined to-day that they could not come to an agreement. Accordingly Senator Hinman, the chairman of the Senate committee, introduced the Tully plan in the Senate this afternoon. Then Senator Agnew (Rep., N. Y.) introduced the new Wadsworth plan. Senator Agnew told Gov. Hughes that he did this in order that the Governor might be able to study the two plans in printed form.

The two houses differ as to the counties which shall comprise seven of the up-State Senate districts. The Tully plan arranges these counties as follows: Counties. teuben, Livingston.

m	Tompkins, Chemung, Tioga, Schuyler	124,4
	Cayuga, Seneca, Cortland
y .	Delaware, Chenango, Broome
d	Otsego, Madison, Schoharle
d	Schenectady, Montgomery.
n	The last plan submitted by the Ass 0-committee and rejected by the S
e.	committee disposes of these counti	es 8
d	follows:

Wayne, Ontario, Livingston Steuben, Chemung. Cayuga, Seneca, Yates, Schuyler, Tloga, Tompkins, Cortland Broome, Delaware.... Madison, Otsego, Chenango... Schenectady, Montgomery, Schoharle.

Under the Assembly plan the greatest population of any one district is 136,383 and the smallest population is 103,779, making a variation of 32,604. Under the Tully plan the greatest population in any one district is 152,247 and the smallest population is 107,261, making a variation of 44,966. Senator Raines to-day telegraphed the Senators to be on hand for the session Monday night. Speaker Wadsworth expects to wire the Assemblyman to be here then. The Republican Senators will caucus Monday night, when Senator Raines expects that they will again decide on the fully plan, substituting in that plan three of the districts suggested by the Assembly committee as follows:

Counties. 115,994 136,385

This would reduce the population of the biggest up-State district under the Tully plan from 152,247 to 136,383, leaving the variation in population between the lowest and highest districts only 39,102. Most of the Republican Senators feel that in accepting three of the seven changes in Senate districts suggested by the sembly committee the position of the Assembly will be clearly untenable should it decide still to oppose the Tully plan as amended. It is true that the changes in the Tully plan to be accepted by the Senate caucus will not in any way aid the political fortunes of the Wadsworth family, as Steuben and Livingston counties are left in a Senate district together, but the Senators point out that in the last plan submitted by the Assembly committee the contention of Speaker Wadsworth that Livingston county should be included in a Senate district within its Congress district was abandoned entirely and that therefore there was now no force to the original objection of the Assembly against placing Livingston with Steuben county.

Speaker Wadsworth to-night declined to express an opinion as to whether or not the Assembly could accept the amended Tully plan. The leading Republican Senamended Tully plan, in view of the fact that since the fight between the two houses over the apportionment has been on no one feasible plan has been presentd by the Assembly which would accomplish the one object desired by Speaker Wadsworth. Senator Hinman seems to think the Assembly will accept the amended Tully plan.

The members of the Assembly Judiciary Committee have been notified of a meeting of the committee to be held at noon Friday. It is expected that by that time those who have been working on the direct nominations bill with the Governor's legal adviser will have the bill ready for the consideration of the committee.

CAN'T WED WITHOUT APPROVAL.

Zabriskie's Daughters to Lose if They Marry Without Their Mother's Permission

In the will of the late Cornelius Zabriskie which was filed in Brooklyn for probate vesterday, there was a clause that may make love's course hard for his daughters, Miss Orlenia and Miss Elvia Zabriskie. It stipulates that neither of the daughters shall marry without the written consent of the mother. If they disregard this clause they are to forfeit the bulk of their inheritance. The clause reads:

"If any of my children shall marry with out his or her mother's written consent, the mother remaining my widow, unmarried, then no income in excess of $2,500 a year shall be paid to that child during the life of his or her mother, and even though that child may reach the age of 30 years no part of the principal of my estate shall be paid to that child during the life of his or her mother, unless his or her mother shall consent in writing to the payment."

This will was drawn fifteen years ago while Mr. Zabriskie was living at 15 Second place. His daughters were little girls at the time. He was a stickler for filial obedience and took this means of insuring his wife's authority. In the case of the remarriage of Mrs. Zabriskie all the property reverts to the children.

Mr. Zabriskie was a wealthy banker with extensive business interests in New Jersey. A few years ago he presented a $30,000 playground to the children of Jersey at the Kings County Hospital and Bradford Street Hospital doctors who recently performed an operation on two young dogs at the Bradford Street Hospital.

FOUR DOCTORS SUSPENDED For Performing an Operation on Two Young

Dr. G. B. Lawson and Dr. Frederick A. Johnson of the Kings County Hospital were suspended for two months, and Dr Lester Lang and Dr. Arthur A. Brown of the Bradford Street Hospital were suspended for one month.

In announcing the decision Commissioner Hebberd said he didn't desire to in erfere with or prejudice the court proceedings instituted against the doctors, but said he wanted to make it plain that the hospital was a place for treating the sick and not for such operations on dogs.

GREATEST YEAR OF SEA TRAVEL. Eastward Rush About Over and Homeward Flights Beginning.

Statistics of the North Atlantic conference made public yesterday, show a record rush to Europe for the last six months. American prosperity among the folk of the first and second cabins and the steerage is assumed to be the cause of the exodus. Then there are more and better ships than there ever have been, and it is almost as cheap to board in a hotel affoat as in some hotels

The increase in second cabin passengers is notable. More than 59,000 of them sailed from this port in the last six months and that is 9,000 more than departed in the corresponding period last year. In the first cabin 2.758 more went away than sailed last year, and 31,000 more than last yearincluding many prosperous immigrants revisiting their old homes—took the eastward trip in the steerage, which nowadays is as well provided as a model lodging house in New York.

The International Mercantile Marine's fleet alone will have carried away more than 1,600 first cabin passengers for the week ended on Saturday. The eastbound passenger traffic will begin to slacken next week. Then the rush of the home comers will begin in earnest, and there will be standing room only even on the poorest of the liners and even the freighters may have a few passengers.

PEACE MEN URGE BANNERMAN. He Tells Them England Is Doing Her Best at The Hague-Education Needed

LONDON, July 17. - Prime Minister Campbell-Bannerman and Foreign Secretary Grey received to-day a deputation of Members of Parliament belonging to the British group of the Interparliamentary Union, who urged greater activity on the part of the British delegates to the Hague conference in reference to arbitration and the limitation of armaments. The Prime Minister said that the views he had already expressed on these questions had the concurrence of all the members of the Cabinet, especially of Sir Edward Grey He pointed out the great number of State represented at The Hague and the necessity r general assent, which checked progress. He said he regretted that inherent difficulties prevented the question of the arres of armaments taking a more advanced position at the conference. Probably the utmost that could be done on the present occasion would be to reaffirm the former resolutions. He indorsed the line taken by the British delegates, who, he declared, thoroughly deserved the confidence of the country and Government. They must, in order to obtain practical results, adjust themselves to the temper and disposition of the conference. The Government thought that everything possible should be done to ripen public opinion regarding the reduction of armaments so as to prepare the way for a favorable reception of the question of future conferences. It was a great step forward, he said in conclusion, for Great Britain to advocate the abolition of contraband, involving as it did the right of search, as there had been an impression that Great Britain with her strong navy would cling tenaciously to the present practice.

AGAINST TROLLEY PARTIES.

Bishop O'Connor of Newark Forbids Or ganizations to Have Outings at Night. SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., July 17 .- Bishop John J. O'Connor of the Newark Catholic diocese has requested organizations connected with his church to refrain from trolley parties after sundown. He wrote to the Rev. Dennis J. McCartie, pastor of St. Michael's Church, Newark, relative to a ride which was scheduled for Friday night under the auspices of the Young Men's Catholic Association of that church

The ride has since been called off. Although the ride of the young men's association was cancelled, it was announced yesterday through printed handbills that the "Luctoria Association" would hold a ride on Friday night and that tickets good for the young men's party would be honored by the "Luctorias." The circular fell into the hands of a member of the committee and a meeting of the board of directors was held last night and as a result a notice was issued to-day warning the public that the association did not countenance the affair nor any amusement which the head of the diocese had disapproved of.

Father McCartie said to-day that the circulars were put out by five young men, members of the association. Father McCarie said the Bishop had declared that moonlight trolley rides and dances were just as injurious to the moral welfare of the young as night picnics, which the late Bishop Wigger interdicted.

HERO OF THE GEORGIA TURRET

MILLER PREVENTED SECOND EX-PLOSION AND DIED FOR IT.

Seaman's Act in Closing Breech of Second Gun After Pawder Was Burning "One of the Bravest Acts I Ever Heard Of." Says Capt. McCrea-A Brooklyn Boy.

Boston, July 17.—The hero of the Georgia turret explosion has been found. He was enlisted at New York as "George Miller of Memphis, ordinary seaman; no home, no kin": and he died as the result of his bravery. Capt. McCrea of the Georgia this afternoon said:

"Miller was a loader of the port gun. It had 108 pounds of powder in it, just the same as the starboard gun, where the fire started. The breech had not been closed, all the powder not having been fitted in when the flash came. Then in a twinkling of an eye Miller shoved his hand into the gun, put the powder in place and closed the breech. It was one of the ceolest and bravest acts I ever heard of."

Miller has been practically identified as Benjamin Kreiger of Brooklyn. He was 18 years old and is said to have run away from home last February and enlisted in the navy at New York under the name of George Miller, Memphis, Tenn., saying that

He confided this much to some of his shipmates and said that he had written to his father, but received no reply and supposed that his parents had gone to Los Angeles, as they had talked some of doing so.

The Navy Department will endeavor to locate the parents. The young sailor will have a military burial to-morrow, and should his relatives appear and claim the body it will be disinterred.

Up to 10 o'clock to-night no more of the injured men of the battleship Georgia had died. The report from the hospital at that hour was that all the injured being treated there were holding their own and were doing as well as could be expected. Midshipman Cruse, whose burns are considered more serious than any of the others, is bearing up bravely against great odds and the hospital reports that his chances of recovery are slightly more favorable. The condition of Seamen James P. Thomas and John L. Maleck, while critical, is not so hopeless as last night.

The Georgia arrived here from the target practice grounds this afternoon, bringing the board of inquiry appointed by Admira Thomas to investigate the accident. The members of the commission are Capt. Seaton of the Virginia, Capt. Kimball of the New Jersey, Lieut. Bristol, ordnance officer of the Atlantic fleet, and Commander Kenneth G. Castleman, aide of Rear Admiral

The commission went to the hospital and took the testimony of such of the injured as were able to talk. The commission had dinner on the Georgia and later started for the starget practice grounds to rejoin the fleet. The Georgia remained here and it was given out that the reason for her stay was to allow such of the men as wished to attend e funerals of the dead sailors to be buried in this vicinity

Washington, July 17 .- The Navy Department to-day received the mail report of Rear Admiral Thomas telling of the accident and the appointment of a board to investigate it. The report says:

"The accident is presumed to be due to the ignition of both sections of an 8 inch charge in the ammunition hoist just removed from the ammunition car, right gun, superimposed after turret, the shell remaining in the car. Cause of ignition not yet determined."

LIEUT. GOODRICH'S FUNERAL. Large Number of Naval Officers Will Attend

the Services at Stone Church The funeral of Lieut. Caspar Goodrich who was killed in the powder explosion in the turret of the battleship Georgia, will be held to-day at Stone Church, N. J. Rear Admiral Goodrich, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, and his wife and two daughters arrived home yesterday after they had arranged for sending the body to the place of the funeral. A company of marines and a company of blue jackets reenforced by a firing squad and the marine band, will put out from the navy yard early this morning in the Powhatan for the Atlantic Highlands, and from there will go to Stone Church to assist in the last rites. The regular funeral party will include beside Admiral Goodrich's family and officers from the Connecticut, the Alabama the Ohio, the Tacoma, and Glacier, a contingent from the battleship Georgia and many civilians. They will take a boat leaving Pier 10, North River, at 10 o'clock this morning. The funeral will be military. The Rev. J. C. Lord of Atlantic Highlands will have charge of the services. Telegrams and messages of sympathy to the number of several hundred into the office yesterday of Rear Admiral Goodrich from all parts of the country One was from a brother officer of Lieut. Goodrich, which said:

"His first thought was for the turret's crew and he showed great spirit, refusing to be helped until he was assured that the others were looked out for. The turret was doing fine work when the accident occurred and would have made a splendid record."

New Brunswick, July 17.—Ex-Free-holder A. L. Mundy of this city, Deputy Sheriff Oberman of Deans and William Stults of Monmouth Junction were invited over to Princeton on Tuesday to fish in a private lake. They had a fine day's sport, all making good catches, but Mr. Mundy easily led with nine fine bass and a pike. One of the bass weighed five ounds.

As the party were passing Grover Cleveland's residence he was leaning over the gate talking to a neighbor. When he saw the Middlesex fishermen he stopped them and said:

"Excuse me, gentlemen, but I couldn't help admiring your string of fish. May ask where you caught them?" The fishermen told him.

"That is remarkable," said the ex-President." I have fished many times in that pond, but never had such luck as that. I must congratulate you."

DEATH THREAT TO CASHIER.

D. Liewellyn of Jamaica Told to Leave

Town to Escape Being Killed. William D. Llewellyn, cashier of the Jamaica Bank, has received a threatening letter in which he is warned to get out of town under penalty of death. There is no signature to the letter, which is printed in letters half an inch long on a piece of plain paper. It was mailed in Jamaica and sen to the home of the cashier, at Bergen avenue and Bergen court, where it was received by Mrs. Llewellyn. The letter said:

"You will be murdered as sure as there s a God in heaven if you do not get out of this town at once. Am waiting for a good chance. Get out of town or await results.

Look out for your child and family."

The cashier has one child, a girl of 6 He says that he knows of no one who would be likely to seek his life, and he is inclined to think that the letter was the work of some mischievous boy. The Jamaica police take a more serious view of the matter and are watching the cashier's home. The postal authorities are also said to be making

That's What Senator Hopkins of Illinois Say After Talking With the President-El Also Says Uncle Joe's Boom Is Boom ing-Persian Emissary at Oyster Bay

OVETER RAY, July 17 .- Senator Hopkin of Illinois lunched and talked over th tariff with the President to-day. The Sena ter stayed for two hours at Sagamor Hill and on his return announced that in his opinion there would be no revision of the existing schedules until after the next Presidential election.

"I talked tariff revision with Presiden Roosevelt during most of my visit," said Senator Hopkins, "and I gained the im pression that there will be no tariff revision until after the next Presidential election."

Senator Hopkins would not say just what utterances of the President ha given him the impression and the tal shifted to Uncle Joe Cannon's boom for "It's all Joe Cannon out West," said the crease. He will get the solid delegation from Illinois. His boom is in better shape than ever. The Senator paused a moment and the added: "I'm fully convinced that Presiden

Roosevelt means just what he says in de clining to consent to a renomination. Other guests who met Senator Hopkins at the President's table were Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, H. L. Stimson, United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York, and H. E. Niles, president of the National Implement Makers and a member of the isconsin Tariff Reform League. Dr. Shaw arrived on the 10:14 A. M. train with Gen. Morteza, the Persian Minister to the United States, who came as a special Ambassador to notify President Roccevel of the accession to the Persian throne of Mohammed Ali as Shah. Dr. Shaw did not know of the augus company in which he was travelling and h; was quite taken aback when the wind blev aside the Persian Minister's linen dustee and disclosed the gorgeous gold braid of the uniform beneath. Gen. Morteza carried his sword done up in paper. He put the sword on the seat of the Governme automobile while he stopped to talk to the reporters and Dr. Shaw in his excitemen sat down on the weapon. The word wasn't damaged much and the doctor's feelings didn't appear to be wounded. The Persian Minister stopped at the Octagon Hotel to brush off the dust an exchange his straw hat for a gold tasseled fez. He looked very warm as he started up the hill. His stay with the President was brief. He stopped on the way to the station to exchange the uniform for coole wear and lost his train and had to wait two hours in hottest Oyster Bay. Asked concerning his visit Gen. Mortez said that he had found the President very gracious and had expressed his Shah's wishes for the continued prosperity of M4 Roosevelt and his country. As to the President's reply all that the Persian Mini ster could say was "Ah, it was more than beautiful." The Persian Minister's address and the President's reply follow:

MR. PRESIDENT: I have the honor to place in your Excellency's hands the letters by which his Imperial Majesty the Shah, my august sovereign, has named me as his Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary with special mission officially to notify the President of the Republic of the United States of my sovereign's accession to the throne of Parsia.
